Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ressler (U.S. Patent Application Publication 2003/0200227).

For claim 4, Ressler teaches a system for identifying and protecting assets, the system comprising:

a central register comprising:

an assets database configured to store registered assets (note paragraph [0030]); and a protection elements database operatively connected to the assets database and configured to store a plurality of protection elements (note paragraph [0030]), wherein said protection elements comprise at least one of an encapsulated microchip and an identification microdot (note paragraphs [0037] and [0047]);

a plurality of registration terminals operatively connected to the protection elements database, each of said registration terminals configured to retrieve one or more protection elements from the protection elements database and to register a selected asset by applying the one or more retrieved protection elements to one or more locations associated with the selected asset (note paragraphs [0037] and [0063], "bureau of motor vehicles"); and a plurality of verification terminals accessible by authorized personnel and operatively connected to the assets database, said verification terminals configured to search the assets database for an input protection element (note paragraphs [0032] and [0035]).

For claim 5, Ressler teaches claim 4 wherein each verification terminal includes a protection element reader configured to read the input protection element (note paragraphs [0035] and [0038]).

For claim 6, Ressler teaches claim 4 wherein each registration terminal includes application equipment configured to apply the retrieved protection element to the one or more locations associated with the selected asset (note paragraphs [0037] and [0063]).

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Vatanen (U.S. Patent Application Publication 2002/0083320) teaches a microchip safety marking registered in a database and attached to an object (note paragraphs [0006]-[0007]).

Brooks (U.S. Patent 6,275,153) teaches a transponder attached to an object. A reader reads an ID from the transponder and compares the ID with a list of registered objects (note column 5, lines 3-23).

Michael et al. (U.S. Patent Application Publication 2003/0088442) teaches the tracking of items in a database (note paragraph [0076]). The items can be identified with a variety of automatic identification technologies including microdots (note paragraph [0079]).
